MAJ. JOHN H. BARNARD DIES IN HIS 86TH YEAR

Veteran of Civil War and for Thirty-One Years an Examiner in Pension Bureau.

Maj. John H. Barnard, civil war veteran and employee of the pension bureau for many years, died yesterday in his eighty-sixth year, at his home, 3542 Warder street.

Maj. Barnard was of revolutionary ancestry, and was born in Lee, Onondaga county, New York. His parents were Joel and Sarah Starr Barnard. In early childhood he moved with his family to Cortland county and was educated in the schools there.

In 1855, at the age of twenty-one, he entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, but resigned his pastorate at the outbreak of the civil war. He devoted his energies to holding and addressing war meetings and raised a company, later known as Company F, 76th Infantry of New York Volunteers.

He was commissioned captain, and served with credit until he was compelled to resign his commission because of serious illness. Regarding his health, he resumed his work in the ministry. The brevet rank of major was conferred upon him for "gallant and meritorious service."

On August 5, 1882, he was appointed an examiner in the pension bureau, which position he held for thirty-one years. Eight years of this time he was on special detail in the field.

He was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic continuously from 1883 up to the time of his death, when he was a member of the Kit Carson Post, No. 2, of this city. In 1870 he was elected chaplain of the department of the New York G. A. R., and was five times re-elected. He was commander of four different posts, and rendered service as an organizer and inspector of posts.

Funeral services will be held at his late residence tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock. Interment will be in Arlington national cemetery. Surviving him are his wife, and daughter, Mrs. W. H. Cornwell of Chicago, Ill.

CAPT. H. C. GRAVES DIES AT WINSFORD, ENGLAND

Capt. Herbert Cornelius Graves, fifty years of age, of the coast and geodetic survey, chief of the division of hydrography and topography, died July 26 at Winsford, Somerset county, England.

Capt. Graves had been selected as a representative of the coast and geodetic survey to attend the meeting of the international conference of hydrographic experts in London, England, beginning June 24, 1918, and after that the meeting of the international research council to be held at Brussels, Belgium.

After the conclusion of the conference he was taken ill and went to Winsford for a rest and for a few days appeared much improved in health, and his death on the date mentioned was sudden and unexpected.

Born in Alexandria, Va. He was the son of William Purdy and Lucy Malvina (Libby) Graves, and was born in Alexandria, Va., on August 12, 1869. His education was obtained in the public schools and in the University of Virginia, from which he graduated in 1889 with the degree of civil engineer. After about two years of railroad, land and city surveying, he was city surveyor of Alexandria for four years.

He was nautical expert in the hydrographic office of the United States Navy at Cleveland, Ohio, until 1888, when he was appointed, through the civil service, nautical expert in the coast and geodetic survey, entering upon that duty August 16, 1888, a position which he held until July 1, 1916, when he was transferred to the normal force as an assistant. On July 1, 1917, he was commissioned a hydrographic and geodetic engineer by the President.

Capt. Graves was married to Clara Edith Walter of this city on September 4, 1894 and leaves besides his widow three sons and three daughters. Two of the sons enlisted in the United States Army during the world war and one served with the Army in France.

As nautical expert Capt. Graves had charge of the necessary field and office revision and the publication of the coast pilot volumes issued by the coast and geodetic survey. The accuracy and excellence of these volumes testify to his ability, faithfulness and diligence.

On October 15, 1915, he was appointed chief of the division of hydrography and topography, and since that date has planned and directed the field work of the vessels of the survey, as well as the wire drawing, topographic, tide and current work.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be in the Presbyterian cemetery, Alexandria, Va.

The following will act as pallbearers: Representative Addison T. Smith, Capt. R. L. Farris, Capt. W. E. Parker, Capt. R. S. Patton, Adam Weschler, A. L. Baldwin, J. H. Entwistle and J. T. Watkins. Rev. Howard F. Downs will officiate at the ceremonies.
